

AMERICA'S ESSENTIAL HOSPITALS

Raymond Powrie, MD
Interim Chief of the Department of Medicine
Women & Infants Hospital of Rhode Island
Chief Medical Quality Officer
Care New England Health System

In addition to his role at Women & Infants Hospital, Powrie is responsible for designing and developing an exceptional program for quality, safety, and risk management across all of Care New England's operating units. His goal is to standardize protocols and procedures, consistent with best clinical quality practices.

Powrie holds a medical degree from the University of Alberta, in Edmonton, Alberta, Canada. He completed residency training in internal medicine at the University of Calgary, in Calgary, Alberta, Canada, and subspecialty training in obstetric and consultative medicine at Women & Infants Hospital and Brown University, in Providence, R.I.